of Cochise County subject to the decision of the Democratic county convention.

Respectfully,
TOM STEELE.

The members of the republican central committee of Cochise county are to be congratulated on the quiet effective nature of their meeting, last Saturday, and the really thorough manner in which their work was done. The selection of delegates to the next territorial convention of the party was most carefully made, and the gentlemen honored by that choice are in every way capable of performing the important duties that will devolve upon them to their own credit and to the advancement of their party.

The catastrophe that has overwhelmed Galveston has formed the theme for conversation among our people. So many knew this splendid city, and many have friends there. In one instance the speaker said he was raised in Galveston and had relations living there. He had lately brought his mother up to this town to reside with him, and he expressed his pleasure that she was spared the fate that has befallen so many. They have property near the shore, which from its position must have been destroyed. There must be hundreds now in this country who are waiting for news of the friends and relations who lived in the ill fated city of Galveston.

We had reason to correct a contemporary who was endeavoring to create dissatisfaction among an intelligent and well satisfied body of workmen. It was attempting to rouse animosity between these men and their employers. We suggested the propriety of the members of that community putting a stop to this wrong doing on the part of an irresponsible paper which has absolutely nothing to lose and never would have. The journal, thus properly reproved, referred to the late change in the editorial management of this paper. We would observe that the present editor has been with the paper since its inception and has managed the editorial department, and has been responsible for the contents of the paper and for all editorial matter in the paper, with the exception of some fear or five articles of little moment, and not affecting any public matter or question the work of the late nominal editor. We always avoid attacking a contemporary if possible, but in this instance where the peace, the progress, and the prosperity of an important mining camp was at stake, we felt it a duty to urge upon the citizens the necessity of repressing the wicked and felonious attempt of an irresponsible malecontent to stir up the members of a powerful and honorable union against the companies to the detriment of the interests of both, and the serious, irreparable injury of a hard working and struggling community.
